

The Colonial Tea was the culminating event for Jimmy Robidoux's two history classes studying a unit on colonial times. Cooperative efforts between library staff and history staff helped make this a successful research project. The following lists some of the experiences students participated in at the Colonial Tea:

- Pictures of America Grant was weaved into the curriculum using the colonial silver, Paul Revere and Paul Revere's ride
- Students presented and displayed their artisan craftsmen projects of colonial time
- Students saw periodic dress of the time
- William Billing's music selections played in the background
- Colonial games were available to try during the tea

Some of the students followed recipes of the time period and brought in and shared applesauce bread and cookies for all to sample and enjoy with the tea.
